

Description:

All buildings of the University of Malakand have a separated water conservation system for water and waste water from domestic use are collected to sedimentation tanks and storage areas for settlement of mud and other impurities. This water is further chlorinated to use the water for agriculture purpose. The Rain water is also collected from the roofs of the buildings and is then discharged into the local ponds and canals around the buildings to main canal system.